

Milk & Roses, One of the Best Brooklyn Restaurants

by Kim Vandenberg

Warm up with authentic Italian cuisine and fall into a plate a burrata, bruschetta, or braised beef ragu in Greenpoint's Milk & Roses. Enjoy the change of seasons, absorb the colors of Autumn and sit outside in the mystical garden while the weather is still on our side. Indulge in Tuscan wines, roasted chicken, and squash panna cotta while drifting deep into conversation with your nearest and dearest. The romantic and rustic restaurant is easy to miss as it's located in the North of Greenpoint far from the G train, away from the hustle and bustle of Williamsburg. A diamond in the rough, this gem of a restaurant truly has it all.

Staying true to Italian style dining, there is a duo of family style seating as well as cozier tables for two in the garden with lush greens, flowers, and candlelit lighting surrounding the intimate setting. Moving into the interior of the building awaits walls filled with vintage literature, liquors, and a Grand piano transporting us to an era of European etiquette and tasteful ambiance. Milk & Roses hosts a mouth watering brunch including blt's, french toast, and an array of options satisfying even the most critical taste buds. Trick or treat yourself to this tasty meeting spot and fly off the radar for a blissful retreat in a culinary luxury.
